BIG CIRCUS SHOWS IN DIXON TOMORROW

HAGENBECK-WALLACE WILL ARRIVE EARLY TOMORROW MORNING.

GREAT PARADE WILL TAKE PLACE

Splendid Display of Fine Horses, Gorgeous Trappings, Gallant Riders, Wild Animals, Etc.—Will Be Great Day in Dixon.

The Carl Hagenbeck and Great Wallace Shows combined will exhibit here tomorrow. The three sections of trains will arrive early in the morning and it will be but a little while before the tented city will be erected.

Judging from the testimony of the eye the Hagenbeck-Wallace show is the most strongly, expensively and strikingly heralded enterprise in the world and measured by the quality and quantity of its announcements, it has to be. It seems small wonder that such an aggregation of rare wild beasts, arenic celebrities and educated wild and domestic animals should be revelation to the circus going public. The many years of experience by the management who directly control this massive enterprise is plainly visible from the fact that they have thoroughly learned what the masses long for and look for in tent entertainment.

Their policy of continually adding the newest and greatest feats and features in every quarter of the globe has been and still is, one of the great factors in their remarkable popularity and success. Among them for the first time here and, in fact, anywhere except under their canvases, will be seen the Lloyd family. These remarkable performers appear in the only original equestrian acts known to the tents for the past half century. In introducing them they use two spirited horses and from the barebacks they execute many entirely original and most extraordinary equestrian and acrobatic feats.

One feature of the show that is quite an item is the horses and ponies. There seems to be a platoon of perfection within the breast of the average human being for these animals. This is one reason why the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus will captivate the public this year. The feature of the parade is the horses. They are remarkably fine. Even those drawing the wagons are well bred and in fine condition.

The circus or ring performance, proper, will be more interesting than ever. Many European acts have been engaged along with many notable American features. Fifty clowns will provide the fun and keep the merriment at sparkling white heat through the entire performance. They work in groups and irresistibly enact the farcical incidents of droll skits.

Many aerial acts will be shown and the principal one is the Six Luten Meteors. Their flights, dives and somersaults from trapeze to trapeze and into the hands of each other high in the air are sufficiently thrilling for the most exact. There are a score or more well known riders and in each act dogs are used to make the feats more picturesque and exciting. The trained wild animal features are many, including the largest group of lions, tigers, leopards and other cat animals, all performing at one time in one large steel arena.

The parade tomorrow morning will be a bewildering mass of gold, silver, silks and satins, being built on absolutely different lines from the parades of other shows. The management invites critical and general attention to this part of the day's entertainment. It is really a mastodonic and rich production of gorgeous fete or pageant of Oriental splendors, with hundreds of men and women seen in indescribable lavish display of jewels and costumes. There are nearly 1000 people in line and over 300 horses besides the herds of huge elephants, camels, dromedaries, sacred cattle, zebras, zebrullas and others, all with costly trappings and paraphernalia to give the requisite coloring and embellishments to the perpetuation of a brilliant event that outshines the elastic conception of the most fanciful records of pageant.

ALEXANDER P. MOORE

According to an unconfirmed report, Alexander P. Moore, editor of the Pittsburg Leader and husband of Lillian Russell, will be appointed ambassador to England in case Roosevelt is elected president.

try glories. In this massive street parade the innumerable embellished wild animal dens will be with their sides removed and through the bars exhibiting a majority of the magnificent wild animal performers. In many other respects this parade will be strikingly original, full of surprises and sensations, merriment and music, lavish, richness, pretty women costumed and costumed, gallant men brilliantly garbed, a large colony of clowns and characters

MANY CANDIDATES FOR UNION TEAM

TWENTY-SEVEN HIGH SCHOOL BOYS COMPETE FOR THE FOOTBALL HONORS.

Twenty-seven candidates for places on the Dixon union high school football team, which has been authorized by the boards of control of the two schools, reported last evening at the meeting at the south side high school building, when Will Loftus was elected manager. The prospects for a strong team are exceptionally good and the coaches, after looking over the material last evening, expressed themselves most optimistically. The first workout of the season was held this afternoon at Athletic park when all the candidates were given general work in handling the ball, tackling, etc.

EXCURSIONISTS DELAYED.

The special train, which carried the Dixon and Sterling Knights Templar to Peoria Tuesday morning, was delayed for some time at Buda. ## TAG DAY A WEEK FROM SATURDAY

LADIES' AUXILIARY OF Y. M. C. A. WILL RAISE MONEY.

IS A VERY DESERVING CAUSE

Ladies' Auxiliary Does Much Good Work and Needs Funds—Big Reception Will Be Held Next Week.

Arrangements for the annual tag day of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. are practically completed and a week from Saturday the people of Dixon and vicinity will be given an opportunity to show their appreciation of the unselfish work the women who compose the organization are doing.

The Ladies' Auxiliary is a necessary adjunct of the Y. M. C. A. and as such are deserving of the support of all citizens. They give their time, efforts and money to better the conditions for the young men of the city, and do much to keep the dormitories at the association building, which are occupied by young men whose homes are elsewhere, cheerful and homelike. Everyone will be given an opportunity to assist with a contribution Saturday, Sept. 28, and there is no doubt the day's campaign will result in a substantial gain in the treasury of the organization.

Public Reception. The Y. M. C. A. building will be closed Thursday and Friday of next week for cleaning purposes. It will be reopened Friday evening, when there will be a big public reception in preparation for tag day, which is the following Saturday. Music, stereopticon views, etc., will form the entertainment at the reception.

The course will open Oct. 31, when the Lyric Glee club, one of the most popular of last year's attractions, will come for a return engagement.

EGG FAMINE HERE.

Local grocers experienced an egg famine yesterday morning and despite drastic efforts to secure a supply of the "hen fruit" the stores passed the day without an egg with which to fill their orders. It is said that relief is in sight, but indications are that eggs will be especially scarce and high priced this winter.

BANKER SNEAD INDICTED

Amarillo, Tex., Sept. 19.—J. B. Snead, the Amarillo banker, has been indicted for the alleged murder here Saturday of Al G. Boyce. The indictment was returned by the Potter county grand jury.

DEKALB YOUTH BREAKS JAIL; RECAPTURED

CRIMINAL ATTACKS' SHERIFF'S WIFE AS SHE BRINGS HIM FOOD.

Calvin Lewis, a young fellow from DeKalb who was bound over to the DeKalb county grand jury on charge of shooting at a crew of a C. & N. W. train, broke from his confinement at the county jail at Sycamore Tuesday afternoon and for half a day roamed around in the woods and cornfields north of DeKalb. He was caught on Tuesday evening at Henrietta, where he tried to board a train, and is now back in jail at Sycamore.

He made his escape when Mrs. Poust, wife of the sheriff, took his dinner to him. As the woman entered his cell the young criminal attacked her, slapped her face and ran from the cell, through the building and into the street and before an alarm could be given he was out of town. A posse searched for him all afternoon before he was finally captured by the sheriff.

BOY PERILS MANY LIVES

Chicago Youth Throws Switch on Michigan Central Road.

South Haven, Mich., Sept. 19.—The lives of one hundred passengers on the Michigan Central train from Kalamazoo were endangered by Reynold Ischer, age thirteen, of 1459 Ogden avenue, Chicago, when he threw open a switch one-half mile from the station here. The passenger train, going at 25 miles an hour, ran on to a side track, but a train of box cars on the same had been moved an hour before and no damage resulted.

The boy is under arrest and has made a full confession. He told the officers he had been reading novels about the west and train hold-ups.

NOTED ACTRESS IS DYING

Mrs. Patrick Campbell Reported Near to Death.

London, Sept. 19.—Mrs. Patrick Campbell is critically ill, with only faint hopes entertained for her recovery. The famous actress was stricken suddenly Sunday, and four specialists were called in. A difference of opinion existed as to whether peritonitis was the cause of her suffering.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell's last appearance was in "Belladonna," the play based on Hichens' novel of the same name.

BATTLE RAGES AT MINE

Five Hundred Shots Are Fired Between Miners at Lafayette.

Lafayette, Colo., Sept. 19.—Five hundred shots were fired in a pitched battle between nonunion coal miners employed by the Simpson mine and a band of supposed union men who attacked the stockade in which the former were having a dance. George Michoff, one of the nonunion men, was shot three times and will probably die. If any of the attacking party were killed or wounded they were carried from the field by their comrades.

Drag River for Four.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 19.—The river near Laps, Manitoba, is being dragged for the bodies of four members of a hydrographic survey party. They are Hugh Cochran and William McMillan, Lindsay, Ontario, and George White and Fred McLennan of Winnipeg. Their canoe was probably swamped.

FARMS BRING GOOD PRICES.

The Daniel Blackburn farm sold Tuesday and the Lee Hart farm sold Wednesday, brought fair figures. The Blackburn estate of 204 acres, sold for $116 per acre and the Hart farm east of Dixon, was bought for $103.50 an acre. Both properties were sold by Auctioneer D. M. Fairney. Frank Lewis of Harmon purchased the Blackburn farm and the Hart place went to James Devine.

CARS WERE HEATED.

The Northwestern this morning had the steam connected and in use in all of its passenger cars, the chill of the night making this necessary for the comfort of the passengers.

NO EXTRA POLICE.

No extra police will be put on duty tomorrow, as those in charge believe the regular force can take care of the additional crowds.

Sheriff C. P. Reid is attending the fair today.

AMBOY FAIR MAKES HISTORY TODAY

15,000 PERSONS ARE ATTENDING THE LEE COUNTY FAIR.

BIG GROUNDS ARE PACKED WITH HUMANITY

Many Politicians Taking Advantage of Gathering—Races Good Despite Slightly Slow Track—Biggest Crowd in History.

Amboy, Sept. 19.—Special to Telegraph—By far the largest crowd that ever congregated in Amboy is jammed within the gates of the Lee county fair grounds here today. An estimate given from the offices on the grounds this afternoon at 3 o'clock was 15,000 people. This is double the number here the same day last year, and this in spite of the weather and condition of the roads from the rain last night.

The half-mile track is almost entirely surrounded by a solid ring of autos and the big amphitheatre is full to capacity and the sale of tickets to the grand stand was stopped early in the afternoon.

Politicians from every county in the congressional district are here. A small army of officers is at work keeping the horde of pleasure seekers in order and so far not an accident or an unpleasant incident has occurred to mar the success of the day.

The track is a little heavy and no doubt will slow up the races a little, but in spite of this some excellent time is being made on the track. The directors of the fair figure that tomorrow's crowd will be exceptionally large, for doubtless many persons were kept away from Amboy today because of the rain, thinking there would be no races. The country roads will be in good condition for travel tomorrow.

Dixon must be nearly depopulated for a large portion of the residents of that city are on the fair grounds today. One report is that there are nearly two hundred auto loads of Dixonites here.

A new feature at the Amboy fair this year is the new dancing pavilion, where dancing is enjoyed each afternoon and evening. The floor is good and in fine shape. A platform is erected for the orchestra, the Green River orchestra furnishing splendid music. Movable walls or sides are provided to the building and in case of rain or if the weather is too cold the immense room can be entirely enclosed.

Attended Fair.

Many Dixon people were noted at the Amboy fair Wednesday. Judge Heard was the guest of Messrs. W. B. McManan, W. C. Thompson and Attorney Harry Edwards.

The familiar faces of Harry Holt and Robert Moore were noted at one of the busy stands. County Treasurer Frank Vaughan and William Leach were about the busiest people on the grounds, and the most good natured.

Speaking of good nature, it seemed to be the password in the enormous crowd on the grounds Wednesday. The only person observed who was not entirely happy was a peevish individual who sauntered up to a refreshment booth and asked for a hamburger sandwich. Upon being supplied he started to eat it, and then turned disgustedly to the vendor, saying: "Say I didn't want onions in this sandwich."

"Well why didn't you say so? You can pick the onions out," remarked the seller as he proceeded to wait on the next customer. Whereupon the man with the sandwich investigated the same and found the onions chopped up with the meat in the filling. Swinging the aforesaid offending sandwich aloft he took careful aim and hit the dispenser of food squarely in the eye. The last mentioned person jumped over the counter, part of which he took with him, and the two chased gaily down the field, with a crowd at their heels. The only disappointment of the day was the fact that it was not discovered how the quarrel over "with onions or without," ended.

San Francisco Couple Slain by Crazed Employee.

Row Over Possession of Collie Blamed for Double Killing and Suicide.

San Francisco, Sept. 19.—A dispute over possession of a valuable collie dog led to a double murder and suicide, in which J. J. Hall, manager of the St. Francis Transportation company, a subsidiary concern of the St. Francis hotel; Mrs. James J. Hall, his wife, and Arthur Knable, a half-brother of Hall, were the victims. That the double murder was premeditated is indicated by a note found in Knable's pocket, in which he asked that his body be cremated. He gave no reason for his act.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Carl R. Rasmussen, a young insurance agent, killed himself by jumping from the nineteenth floor of the Masonic Temple. He landed on the roof of the Martin J. Ryerson building. Threaten to Kill Americans. New York, Sept. 19.—"If the United States intervenes in the present crisis I will kill every American in Mexico. Then I will enter Mexico City, but it will be to join the federal army to fight the northern invader."

This threat was the concluding statement in a letter to the New York Herald received from Gen. Emiliano Zapata, the Mexican rebel chieftain, who is threatening to invade the capital of the republic and overthrow President Madero.

Zapata explains that his reason for sending the letter is to inform the people of the United States just what the conditions are that have led to his rebellion. His charges against President Madero include broken pledges, nepotism, dishonesty and oppression. "I have 18,000 men under arms in sixteen states of Mexico, while Pascual Orozco, with whom I have no connection, has control of two states, making twenty states under arms. If I am victorious, I shall drive Orozco from the country."

Warship to Mexican Coast.

Washington, Sept. 19.—The cruiser Des Moines, the first American warship to appear on the eastern coast in Mexico in more than a year, arrived at Tampico.

The state department made it clear that while United States warships were expected to extend protection to American or other foreign citizens, in case local authorities could not protect them, their commanders have been strictly enjoined to take no part in the factional fighting or quarrels incident to the revolution.

The Des Moines will cruise between Tampico and Vera Cruz and other eastern ports.

Alas and Alack.

This Dixon man arrived home much later than usual from "lodge." He took off his shoes and stole quietly into the bedroom. His wife began to stir. Quickly the panic-stricken man went to the cradle of his first-born and began to rock it vigorously.

"What are you doing there, Robert?" queried his wife.

"I've been sitting here for nearly two hours trying to get this baby to sleep," he growled.

"Why, Robert," exclaimed the wife. "I've got the little dear here in bed with me."

Assails Drink Habit in College.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 19.—Ascribing many failures in college to the use of liquor and tobacco, President Edmund J. James in his address at the opening convocation at the University of Illinois urged students to take as their motto, "Touch not, taste not, handle not."

"Seniors and juniors," he said, "might build up a most excellent college tradition if they would prohibit freshmen and sophomores from smok- ing and drinking, on the ground that they are still infants, at least in the academic sense."

"The habit of treating and urging fellow students to learn to smoke and drink on the ground that it belongs to good tone in student society is un- worthy of the American college stu- dent, and it should be consigned to the limbo of kiddish tricks, to be suf- fered, if at all, only in high schools and academies."

Templars Elect Officers.

Peoria, Sept. 19.—Willis Emmerson of Mount Vernon was named warden over Edwin F. Buck of Peoria in the only contest furnished by the elec- tion of officers at the convocation of the Illinois Knights Templar in session here. The vote was 140 for Emmer- son to 85 for Buck. ### Jury Frees Another Woman.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—For the fourth time within a year a jury in the criminal court of Cook county de- clined to return a verdict of guilty against a woman accused of murder. Mrs. Elizabeth Buchanan, twenty-four years old, was found not guilty of the murder of Josie Rice, a negro, by a jury in Judge Cooper's court. The other women acquitted of murder after trials in the criminal court are: Mrs. Jane Quinn, Mrs. Rene B. Mor- row and Mrs. Florence Bernstein, all accused of slaying their husbands.

Japanese Clover Growing Wild.

Nashville, Sept. 19.—Heavy show- ers have broken the first drought of the entire year, reviving the pastures and benefiting vegetation generally. Farmers are pleased because Japan- ese clover is growing wild in some pastures. It spreads rapidly and the cattle forage on it. How it came here is a mystery, but it is believed that it was imported with grain from the south.

Only Six Negroes in Mount Carmel.
Mount Carmel, Sept. 19.—Mount Carmel challenges any city in the southern part of Illinois to show a smaller per cent. of negro population than she has. The new directory shows a population of 8,505, and of this number there are seven negroes listed. Since the issuance of the di- rectory one of these has removed from the city.

WOMEN, AVOID OPERATIONS

Many Unsuccessful — And Worse Suffering Often Follows. Mrs. Rock's Case
A Warning.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will show how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when often it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffer- ing worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displace- ment. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My phys- ician treated me for several months with- out much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com- pound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. R. 10 & 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the stand- ard remedy for women's ills, and has restored the health of thousands of suf- fering women. Why don't you try it?

HOW TO PRESERVE YOUTH AND BEAUTY.

One great secret of youth and beauty for the young woman or the mother is the proper understanding of her womanly system and well-being. Every woman, young or old, should know herself and her physical make up. A good way to arrive at this knowledge is to get a good doctor book, such for instance, as "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, M. D., which can readily be procured by sending thirty-one cents for cloth-bound copy, addressing Dr. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y.

The womanly system is a delicate machine which can only be compared to the in- tricate mechanism of a beautiful watch which will keep in good running order only with good care and the proper oiling at the right time, so that the delicate mech- anism may not be worn out. Very many times young women get old or run down before their time through ignorance and the improper handling of this human mechanism. Mental depression, a confused head, backache, headache, or hot flashes and many symptoms of derangement of the womanly system can be avoided by a proper understanding of what to do, in those trying times that come to all women.

Mrs. G. H. Williams, of Lynnhaven, Va., wrote: "It is six years since my health gave way. I had female trouble and all the doctors had to hire someone all the time. Finally, I read in the papers about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and decided to try it. I had not taken but one bottle until I found it had done me good. I took, in all, five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now I am able to do all my housework, and have gained fourteen pounds. I advise all women who suffer from female trouble to try your 'Favorite Prescription.' It's the only medicine on earth."

MAJESTIC—CHICAGO.

One of the greatest dramatic achievements ever known in vaudeville will mark the week of September 23 at the Majestic theatre, Chicago. This will be the production by David Belasco of his remarkable one act play, "Madame Butterfly." It has never been seen in Chicago under the condition to prevail at the Majestic, where the stage and all the appointments are absolutely perfect for such a beautiful production. The cast includes ten recognized actors who have gained recognition under Mr. Belasco's management and the production includes a carload of oriental scenery. Not only to those enjoying the highest class of drama, but for the multitudes who understand very well the beauty and pathos of such a story as Madame Butterfly, having been a universal success it will make an appeal in a week to a larger constituency than ever and will be presented as Miss Barrymore's "Twelve Pound Look" was, in a better and more adequate manner at the Majestic theatre than it ever has been before. The other features of the bill for this date will be unusually bright and smart vaudeville. Mrs. Frank Farnum, wife of a Chicago alderman and one of the best singers in the city, having been engaged in the more important choir and concert work for some time will make her vaudeville debut this week and her personal charm and vocal talent are such that great things are expected for her appearance.

Earl & Curtis, two of the best known comedy singers and dancers, will appear, also the big transformation act by Staley & Birbeck. Other acts are little Billy, the midget comedian, the Riads, Jerry Grady & Co., and Herman's novelty, which consists of the most wonderfully trained cats and dogs.

NOGI IS LAID TO REST

Japanese Hero and Wife Given Impressive Funeral.

Relatives of Men Who Fell in Battle Under the General Follow Funeral Cortège.

Tokyo, Japan, Sept. 19.—The funeral of Gen. Count Maresuke Nogi, supreme military councillor of Japan, and his wife, who committed suicide the night of September 13, just as the body of Emperor Mutsuhito passed out of Tokyo on its way to the imperial tomb at Monoyama, was held with impressive ceremonies at the Aoyama cemetery, in the presence of enormous crowds.

The cortège left the Nogi residence in Akasaka, a suburb, at three p. m., and passed through the streets at the capital on its way to the grave at Aoyama. The body of Japan's great warrior was borne on a gun carriage, while the coffin containing the body of the countess was carried in a hearse. The pall bearers were chosen from the highest ranks of the Japanese army and navy. One regiment of infantry acted as a guard of honor.

Prior to the removal of the bodies representatives of Emperor Yoshihito and Empress Sadako and the empress dowager visited the Nogi residence. Representatives of the special foreign envoys who came to attend the funeral of the late Japanese monarch and the resident ambassadors and ministers participated in the procession, which numbered upward of 50,000 persons. Marching behind the coffins were great numbers of relatives of soldiers killed at Port Arthur while serving under General Nogi in the spring of 1904.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Signals.

There were a good many days after that—not days at all, really, but an interminable period of night—which were broken for Jeanne by no ray of hope whatever. She kept Philip and herself alive, from day to day, and this occupation left her hardly time enough to think whether there was anything to hope for or not.

Much of the time Philip was delirious; sometimes violently so, and yet she often had to leave him. When she did so, it was with no certainty at all that she would find him alive upon her return.

At last the conviction was forced upon her that Philip was actually on the road to recovery. His delirium became less violent and occurred at longer intervals. The frightful condition of his wounds began visibly to improve. Instinctively she resisted this conviction as long as she could, refusing almost passionately to begin to hope—for the return of hope brought her almost intolerable pain with it. Without hope there had been no fear, no apprehension—just as in a frozen limb there is no pain. But, as the possibility of his recovery became plain, the slenderness of the thread by which his life was hanging became plainer, too. A thousand chances which she could not guard against might cut the thread and destroy the hope new-born.

He was able, at last, after a long sleep and a really hearty meal of sustaining food—which she hardly dared give him—to get up and walk out of their shelter to the star-vaulted beach. Fifty paces or so was all he was equal to; but at the end of the little promenade he expressed a disinclination to go back to the stuffy little shed which had been the scene of his long illness. The clean, wide, boundless air was bringing back the zest for life to him. So Jeanne brought out from the hut a great bundle of furs and made a nest of them on the beach, and there he lay back and she sat down beside him.

"Do you remember, Jeanne," he said, "the first time we sat out like this, there on the ice-floe beside the Aurora, and I told you how I had learned to fly?"

She locked her hand into his before she answered.

"I couldn't believe that night that I wasn't dreaming," she said softly.

"Nor I, either," he told her; "and, somehow, I can't believe it now—not fully—not this part of it, anyway."

He had lifted the hand that was locked into his and pressed it to his lips before he spoke. There was a silence after that. Then, with a little effort, the girl spoke.

"Philip, do you remember my saying what a contempt you must have for the world that didn't know how to fly? Do you remember that, and the answer you made to it?"

He nodded.

"Philip, is that still there? Your contempt, I mean, for the world?"

"I don't believe," he said, "that you can even ask that seriously—you, who gave me first my soul back again and then, in these last weeks, my life. For it's been your life that has lived in me these last days—they must be a good many—just as it was your warmth and faith and fragrance that gave me back my soul, long ago." He paused a moment; then, when he went on his voice had a somewhat different quality. "But the other contempt, Jeanne, that still exists, or would exist if I gave it the chance, the world's contempt for me. Not even your faith could shake that."

She had been half-reclining beside him, but now she sat erect purposefully, like one who has taken a resolution.

"I'm not so sure of that," she said, in a matter-of-fact tone, though there was an undercurrent of excitement in it. "Philip, I have been trying to solve a puzzle since you were ill. I hoped I could solve it by myself. If I were intelligent enough I'm sure I could; but I'll have to ask you to help me. It's a string of letters written around a picture, in a locket."

"A locket of yours?" he asked, surprised.

"Never mind about that just now," she spoke hastily and the undercurrent of excitement was growing stronger in her voice.

"Do you want me to try it now?" he asked. "If you'll make a light and show me the thing I'll see what I can do."

"Perhaps you won't need that," she said. "I can remember the letters. They are divided up into words, but I'm sure they are not any foreign language; they are in a code of some sort."

She did not turn to look at him, but she felt him stir a little, with suddenly aroused attention, and heard his breath come a little quicker.

"The first letter was all by itself," she said, trying to keep her voice steady. It was N—. And then, in one word, came the letters p-b-j-n-e-q—

"That means 'A coward,'" he said. His voice was unsteady, and he clutched suddenly at her hand. She could feel that his was trembling, so she took it in both of hers and held it tight.

"It's a code," he said, a boyish code of my own. I remember that for a long time after I invented it I believed it to be utterly insoluble; yet it was childishly simple. It consists simply of splitting the alphabet in two and using the last half for the first and vice versa. It must have occurred to hundreds of boys, at one time and another, and yet—" his voice faltered. "Yet, it's a little odd that you should have stumbled upon another example of it."

"The next word was o-r-g-e-n-l-r-q—" "That means 'betrayed,'" he said, almost instantly. "Was—was there any more?"

"One little word, three letters, 'u-y-z.' But I know already what they mean, Philip." There was a momentary silence, then she repeated the whole phrase—"A coward betrayed him." She was trembling all over now, herself. "I knew," she said, "I knew it was something like that." Then she dropped down beside him and clasped him tight in her arms. "Philip, that was written around your picture, an old picture of you it must have been, which fell out of your pocket when I was undressing you that night after your fight with Roscoe. I recognized the locket it was enclosed in as Mr. Hunter's. I had often seen it on his watch fob, and it's engraved with his initials."

"It fell out of my pocket," said Philip, incredulously.

"Yes," she said, "that puzzled me, too, for awhile; and finally I figured it out. You must have found it—"

"That night in Roscoe's cave, when I was waiting for him. I had forgotten it until this moment."

"I knew it must be like that," she said, "something like that. And wasn't it?" she began—

"Hunter's code as well as mine? Yes. We made it up together when we were boys," he said, "and we used it occasionally even after we left the Point. We wrote in it, both of us, as easily as in English; and read it the same way."

Her young arms still held him fast.

"Philip, he must have been sorry a long time—almost since it happened. It's an old, old picture of you, dear, and the link of the letters is faded. He's carried it with him ever since, as a reminder of the wrong he did you, and of his cowardice in letting you suffer under it."

"I suppose it was that from the first."

"I don't believe he ever meant—" She let the sentence break off there, and there was a long, long silence.

"I suppose that's true," he said at last. "I suppose I might have saved him then, just as I might have saved him later, from Roscoe's dart. I can think of a hundred ways that it might have happened—the accusation against me, I mean—without his having any part in it." Then he said rather abruptly: "Fanshaw told you the story, didn't he?"

She assented. "Most of it, that is. Perhaps not quite all he knew."

"I don't know it all myself," he told her, "that is, I have filled it in with guesses. I knew about the girl, Hunter was half mad about her, and she, I suppose, was in love with him. Anyway, he came to me one night—the last time I ever talked with him—raging with excitement. The girl's father had found out about him and meant, she said, to kill him, and perhaps, her, too. Anyhow, she had forbidden Hunter seeing her again. We took a drink or two, together, before I started, and I suppose he must have drunk himself half mad after that; for he started right on my trail and did what you know. I have always supposed,

"There," he said, "look there!" What she saw was simply a pencil of white light, pointing straight from the horizon to the zenith, and reaching an altitude of perhaps 20 degrees. Compared with the stupendous electrical displays that they were used to seeing in that winter sky, it was utterly insignificant, and from it she turned to search his face, in sudden alarm.

"No, no—look—look!" he commanded, his excitement mounting higher with each word.

She obeyed reluctantly, but at what she saw her body became suddenly rigid and she stared as one might stare who sees a spirit. For the faint pencil of white light swung on a pivot, dipped clear to the horizon, rose again and completed its circuit to the other side.

She sat there beside him, breathless, almost lifeless with suspense while that pencil traced its course back and forth from horizon to horizon, stopped sometimes on the zenith, to turn back upon itself—sometimes continuing through unchecked. At last her breath burst forth from her in a great sob. She turned and clung to him wildly.

"Philip," she said, "it can't be that—it can't—it can't!"

"Tell me—tell me what it looks like—what you think you see?"

She stayed just where she was, clinging to him, cowering to him, as if something terrified her, her face pressed down against his shoulder.

"Signals," she gasped out. "From a light—from a search-light."

He drew a long deep breath or two, and his good arm tightened about her.

"Well," he said, his voice breaking in a shaky laugh, "if we are mad, we are mad together, Jeanne, dear, and with the same madness; and if we are dreaming, we are living in the same dream. Did you read what it said? Oh, no, of course you couldn't—but I did. It's the old army wig-wag, and it has been saying all sorts of things. Spelling out your name most of the time. What it just said was, 'Courage. They are coming.'"

"Fanshaw Told You the Story, Didn't He?"

Until just now, that he had used my name as his own with her, to screen himself from possible trouble. But that may not have been the case. He may simply have spoken of me as his friend.

"The girl was in love with him, and it would be natural for her to give her father my name instead of Hunter's, and make the accusation against me. I suppose he thought that I could, probably, clear myself easily enough, without involving him, and that the whole row might blow over without doing any irreparable damage to either of us. And then, when it didn't blow over—when it got worse and meant ruin for somebody—the fact that he hadn't spoken at first would have made it ten times harder to speak at last. I might have helped him. He sent word to me once, when I was under arrest, to ask if I would see him, and I refused. I was very . . . His speech was punctuated now by longer and longer pauses, but still Jeanne waited. "Very sure of the correctness of my own attitude then. Correct is, perhaps, the exact word for it. I wouldn't turn a hand to save a man—a man who had been my friend, too—from living out the rest of his life in hell." He shuddered a little at that and she quickly laid her hand upon his lips.

"That was long ago," she said. "You can see now what a God, perhaps, would have seen and done then. And if you did wrong, then it's you who have paid the penalty. You have paid for the thing you left undone as well as for the thing he did. But we must not talk about it any more, now. You're not strong enough. I ought not to have spoken of it at all, but, somehow, I couldn't wait any longer."

"Just this much more, Jeanne, and then we will let it go: You see now, don't you, dear, why I said I never could go back to the world, never clear myself of the old charge at Hunter's expense—Perry Hunter's expense—now that he is dead; and don't you see that that's as impossible now as it was when I first said it?"

It was with a half laugh and a half sob that she kissed him.

"Oh, my dear," she said, "what does the world matter? This is the world here. You and I. The space of this great bear-skin we are lying on. The past can't come between us, and what else is there that matters? Come, it's time for you to take another nap. Are you warm enough out here, or shall we go back to the hut?"

"I'm warm, soul and body, thanks to you," he said.

But it was Jeanne who went to sleep. Somehow, since that last explanation a wonderful great, soft calm seemed to envelop her. She slept there like a child beside him, his hand still half-clasped in hers.

It was Philip's voice that awakened her. How long afterwards she did not know. He was sitting erect on the great bear-skin, and all she could see of him was the dim silhouette of his back against the sky.

"What is it?" she asked, drowsily. "Is anything the matter?"

He could hardly command his voice to answer.

"It's that aurora, over there," he said. "No, it's gone now. It may come back. It's right over there in the south—straight in front of you."

"But, my dear—my dear—" she persisted, "why should an aurora . . . Is it because of the one we saw the night you killed Roscoe? Is it that old nightmare that it brings back?"

She was speaking quietly, her voice caressing him just as her hands were. She was like a mother trying to reassure a frightened child.

"No, it's not that," he said, uneasily. "I don't know—I think I may be going mad, perhaps. I know I wasn't dreaming. I thought so at first, but I know I'm not now." Then she felt his body stiffen, he dropped her hand and pointed out to the southern horizon.

"There," he said, "look there!" What she saw was simply a pencil of white light, pointing straight from the horizon to the zenith, and reaching an altitude of perhaps 20 degrees. Compared with the stupendous electrical displays that they were used to seeing in that winter sky, it was utterly insignificant, and from it she turned to search his face, in sudden alarm.

DRAW PERKINS IN HARVESTER SUIT

Signature of Chairman of Finance Committee on Firm's Contracts.

"DUAL LIFE" IS DEFENSE

Heads of International Company Claim New Jersey Concern is Beyond Arm of U. S. Law—Business All in the State.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—George W. Perkins figured prominently for the first time in the government's suit to dissolve the $140,000,000 harvester implement combination when contracts which Perkins had signed as chairman of the finance committee of the International Harvester company of New Jersey were introduced as evidence. The contracts were for the purchase of rival competing concerns. Tells of Harvester Purchase.

"The International Harvester company, through George W. Perkins, acquired control in 1903 of D. M. Osborne & Co.," said Edwin P. Grosvenor, attorney for the government, in introducing the first exhibit. "This contract was signed January 15, 1903, by Mr. Perkins as chairman of the finance committee of the International Harvester company, and Thomas M. Osborne and E. D. Metcalfe. The consideration paid was $4,500,000."

"The government charges in its petition that D. M. Osborne & Co. for several years thereafter masqueraded as 'independent' and widely advertised itself as the largest independent company in the country and independent of any trust."

McCormick and Deering Signed. Charles H. McCormick and Charles Deering were other officials of the harvester company who signed the contracts. These three who controlled the affairs of the company has been subpoenaed as a witness by the government in anticipation of the possibility of subsequent personal prosecutions under the criminal clauses of the anti-trust law, it is said.

How the "dual personality" of the International Harvester company will be an important factor in the corporation's defense against the government's dissolution suit was realized by the government representatives when the hearing was resumed. The argument was made by the attorneys for the $140,000,000 harvester implement concern that the International Harvester company of New Jersey, the corporation which does all the manufacturing and makes practically all the profits, is not engaged in an interstate business and therefore not amenable to the national government.

The International Harvester company of America, the corporation which does the marketing of the output, did a business of $100,000,000 last year, on which it made a profit of only $150,000, or three-twentieths of one per cent, according to the testimony of R. C. Haskins, its president, late yesterday.

Goes Over Directors' Records. Edwin P. Grosvenor passed the afternoon in going over records of meetings of the directors and committees of the Harvester company, which were produced at the morning session by counsel for the defendants in response to subpoenas.

Mr. Grosvenor will select certain portions of these minutes to introduce as evidence.

POLICE PREVENT HARI-KARI Japanese in Colorado Planned Last Honor to Mikado.

Grand Junction, Colo., Sept. 19.—Fifty Japanese gathered in secret meeting to draw lots to select one who should commit hari-kari as a manifestation of grief over the death of Emperor Mutsuhito. The police were informed and broke down the door of the room where the meeting was held. Two of the leaders were arrested and confessed suicide agreement. Druggists in Grand Junction have been warned by the police not to sell poison to Japanese.

KANSAS FLYER IS HURT Aviator Seriously Injured When Machine Falls to Earth.

CASH TO MOVE CROPS Assistant Secretary of Treasury to Confer With MacVeagh.

H., to confer with Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh and consider the advisability of distributing $25,000,000 to banks in the great farming sections to prevent a money stringency through the amounts withdrawn for the movement of crops.

DOUBT DISAPPEARS

NO ONE IN DIXON WHO HAS A BAD BACK SHOULD IGNORE THIS DOUBLE PROOF. Does your back ever ache? Have you suspected your kidneys? Backache is sometimes kidney ache. With it may come dizzy spells. Sleepless nights, tired, "all days. Distressing urinary disorders. Doan's Kidney Pills have been endorsed by thousands. Are recommended here at home. You have read Dixon proof. Read now the Dixon sequel. Renewed testimony; tested by time.

C. J. Kirkham, 111 E. Fourth St., Dixon, Ill., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of kidney disease and the cure has been permanent. All I said about this remedy when I previously endorsed it holds good. I had been suffering from pain across my back for a long time and did not think it was caused by weak kidneys. Finally a friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box at Leake Bros' Drug Store. It did not take them long to remove my trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

DRASTIC ACTION TAKEN BY PRESIDENT TAFT'S ADVISERS.

Republican Committee Declares Seats of Four Vacant and Allows Three to Resign.

New York, Sept. 19.—By unprecedented but unanimous action, the Republican national committee, sitting as a trial court in the Hotel Manhattan, ousted seven of its members for heresy and disloyalty to President Taft. Of the forty-eight members of the committee, forty-one were present or were represented by proxies. All voted to expel the accused members.

The hearing was held behind closed doors and Chairman Hill announced that the committee had accepted the resignations of the members from Ohio, Oklahoma and Minnesota and had declared vacant the seats of four others. Those who were ousted are: Borden D. Whiting of New Jersey, who has refused to resign. He will be succeeded by Franklin Murphy, former governor.

William J. Edwards of West Virginia, who has refused to resign. He will be succeeded by former United States Senator Nathan Scott.

Richmond Pearson of North Carolina, recently declared disloyal by the North Carolina Republican state convention. His successor is to be E. C. Duncan, a former senator.

Russ Avery of California. He has not resigned, but has said the Republican party in California has quit the national Republican party. The national committee will choose his successor.

Those who resigned are: Walter F. Brown, the Oklahoman, whose place is to go to Sherman Granger; C. C. Priestly of Oklahoma, and J. A. Caswell of Minnesota.
